

Minda Berbeco

Bio

Minda Berbeco is a PhD Candidate at Tufts University in Biology. Her research focuses on carbon sequestration in temperate forests. Her collaborations have included research with scientists at Harvard Forest, Boston University and Woods Hole Marine Biological Laboratories. She is a board member of the Massachusetts Environmental Education Society and has worked to develop curriculum for High Schools on climate change biology. She has a B.S. from Carnegie Mellon University.